In pursuance of this very proper view of their obligations, the Chinese Authorities have set to work, probably, according to their ideas, with great vigour, to subdue the aborigines, reclaim the country, and bring it under cultivation. To this last work they have been strongly urged by the native papers, and have at length yielded to the expression of this opinion. They have de. termined to develop the valuable coal mines. the utmost, and, as we announced in Saturday's issue, to introduce the Quinine, Gutta Perche, and India Rubber plants into the island. The law against emigration from China is to be relaxed, as far as Formosa is concorned, and it is hoped that it will, in comparatively short space of time, thoroughly settled with a law-respecting population. Mr. Hayllar, then commenced his argument against the petition. He said that with the exception of one fact, the whole argument of the Attorney-General was before the Court before the arrangement of the 6th of March was made. The only piece of evidence which was new was the affidavit of Pauls, filed in March or Apri this year, stating that he was the man that owed the money. Ever since October, 1873, since the ship was scized, up to April; 1875. plaintiff remained in complete ignorance, as far is evidence was conterned, that Paulis was the debtor : and this all important fact which went to the root of the whole case, was left over two years before it was produced. Therefore, this evidence which might have been investigated at once, and might have settled the whole question, came at a time which to say the least of it was excessively suspicions. The learned counsel then referred to the letter which had been received from the King stating that he did not know how the lawyers "Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Kingsmill defended the case. words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in existen. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming eiercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are English-made cuahiops. given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast material. economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Ohinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese obstracters. Again, despite all the grammers and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applisations and equivalents of different words which many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

FOUR SONNETS ON A PHILISTINE THEME.

MY LITTLE ROY'S FACE. O little face, little; loved tonder face, Set, like a saint's in curls for sureole-Little, loved face, in which the clear child-soul is mirror'd with a changeful parfect grace; Where sudden ripples of light laughter chase The dimnles round the dainty month; where roll Cloud-shadows of great questionings, and dolo For human ills half realised; where race. In restless sequence, gloom, gloom, shade, and shine-A thousand feelings, sorrow, love, and joy, A thousand thoughts, of folly half divine, And bold imaginings, and fancles coy, And reasonings dream-like !- 0 my boy, my boy, How I do love that little face of thing!

O little face, how soon the years, alas! Shall score stem lines upon that pure smooth brow. And round the eyes and vermeil mouth, where now No harshness dwells, but all emotions pass As subtle-smooth as light winds over grass-Aye score stern lines, marking the when and how Of all life's storms: I hear their sway and sough Coming; they gloom upon us; from the mass: Of congregated clouds leap fire, and min, And thunder; then they sob themselves to slean. But, ah! the difference in the summer plain. The shatter'd woods, the sodden meadows deep, And blasted promise of the golden grain ;---And at the change I cannot choose but weep.

THE CLASSICAL IDEAL. Must then thy beauty be so soon outworn-A canker'd bud doom'd to untimely death; A hoar-frost landscape, melting at a breath Into unsightly drops; a pearl-rose morn leralding sleet and dank grey miats forlorn ; goodly garment, as the Pasimist suith, The moth shall feet until it perisheth? For so some hold, deeming all beauty born Of youth's fresh tinking and unroubled lines, Of colour only and of form -ave hold That it nemst fade as each full festure pines With age, and the flush cheek grows wan and cold The eye less bright, and chill with silver shines The bair of bronze that had the theen of gold.

THE GOTHER IDEAL. interest source and artition then the slave Of that dull workman, Time ! I tell thee nay? He is thy studio drudge, to mould youth's clay At thy beheat, and at thy will to grave Manhood's stern marble. So thou guide the knave, Then shall each touch and chisel-stroke display, In lines perchance now broken in the sway Of effort, now harmoniously suaro, Thy pure high thoughts, which in inviolate will Guards from the possion-strokes of pain and ill, And slow corrosion of the mean and base; And to life's close, not only in the ken' Of the great Master Critic, but of mon, Beauty shall sit enthroned upon that face,
